SELF HELP

Members of the Tacoma Ministrial Alliance, businessmen and representatives of several organizations as well as individual members of the community joined together Saturday morning at the Colored Women Club to discuss the impact on the community as a result of the budgetary cuts.

A new organization was born that day, THE CONCERNED BLACK CITIZENS AND ORGANIZATIONS OF TACOMA. Its purpose is to develop and execute strategies to combat the problems that are plaguing the community.

Tommy Hilyard, one of the speakers, urged the audience to write, call or even visit their politicians on the Federal, State and local level to let them know how their decisions are affecting the community...so when theses agencies talk about balancing the budget, blacks won't be balanced out of the budget.

Allen Correll, Director of Human Rights Department, discussed some specifics of surviving...what could be done to soothe the sting...in the way of food, clothing, emergency shelter, etc.

This, means not only donating food and clothing, but providing manpower to organize, supervise and distribute the food and clothing. Also create job banks for the youth to cut grass, clean yards, garages, handy work around the house. This is just the beginning, CBCOT will be meeting next Saturday, April 25 at the Colored Women Club 9 a.m.

Tillicum Church Bombed

Easter Sunday marked a day to be remembered for more reasons than one by Rev. Melvin R. Clark and his congregation at the Tillicum Presbyterian Community Church.

During the services a sudden blast ringed the ears of the Easter worshippers as glass flew more than 15 feet into the church injuring James G. Faircloth, the pianist and Ronnie Gentry, who played the organ, causing facial cuts and bruises.

It is not clear presently as to the motive of the explosion, however, Rev. Clark said he was unsure whether the all-black congregation had been the target of a racially motivated attack.

According to Ed Isakson, Detective of the Pierce County Sheriff Department, fragments of a grenade simulator were recovered. It is difficult to determine its origin because the military does not serialize the grenades. However, at least once a week there is some kind of grenade simulator explosion usually in mailboxes or other related cases of vandalism.

The Criminal Investigation Department and Treasury Department Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco And Fire Arms are cooperating in the investigation.

Black Caucus Answers

Congressional Black Caucus answers Reagan challenge: presents "Constructive Alternative" budget

Washington, D.C.---The Congressional Black Caucus, recently submitted its alternative budget proposal to Congress, in response to President Reagan's challenge in his economic message to a joint session of Congress on February 18, 1981. In that message the President asked that anyone who did not accept his program come up with "an alternative which offers a greater chance of balancing the budget, reducing and eliminating inflation, stimulating the creation of jobs, and reducing the tax burden." The Congressional Black Caucus has answered that challenge.

"The CBC budget is designed to:

1) move America toward full employment
2) help reduce inflation
3) improve national security without excessive military spending
4) provide tax relief for poor, working class, and middle income citizens
5) encourage job creating private investment.

The Black Caucus plan would move America toward tthese objectives while reducing the federal deficit. Under the plan, federal outlays in fiscal 1982 would ttotal $721.1 billion, revenues $677.6 billion, for a deficit of $43.5 billion. The Reagan Administration budget calls for outlays totalling $695.3 billion and revenues of $650.5 billion, for a deficit of $45 billion.

Black Caucus budget proposals, grouped by issue, include:

EDUCATION--Preserve existing aid to higher education and college aid. Mainttain targetted educational assistance programs and increase educational aid for the disadvantaged.

EMPLOYMENT--Restore full funding of CETA employment and training programs.

HEALTH--Maintain Medicare, Medicaid and other healtth programs. Increase outlays for health education, research and training.

HOUSING--Create additional incentives for construction of new housing and rehabilitation of existing housing stock.

FOOD--Restore funding for all food and nuttrition programs, so that no American need suffer hunger or malnuttrition.

ENERGY--Continue federal energy conservation programs and maintain support for solar, fossil and biomass fuel research and development. Save $300 million by eliminating the proposed Clinch River Breeder Reactor.

NATIONAL SECURITY--Implement General Accounting Office recommendations which will reduce waste and mismanagement in military spending by at least $3 billion a year. Save $21.3 billion by eliminating unnecessary weapons procurement programs. Keep civilian military service competitive witth private employment by resttoring proposed pay increases. Improve U.S. relations with the third world nations by increasing international development and relief spending while cutting military assistance.

Key tax proposals from the Congressional Black Caucus include:

--Increase the standard deduction by $500 for individuals and $900 for joint returns.

--Extend the Earned Income Tax Credit tto provide additional tax relief for families earning up to $13,000.00 a year.

--Provide additional tax relief for individuals with a 10 percent individual social security tax credit; help create new jobs in private industry with a similar tax credit on employer social security payments.

--Provide equitable investment incentive for business through a First Year Capital Cost recovery system.

--Provide targetted job creation credits, rehabilitation credits, and investment credits to encourage business development in the central cities.

--Increase federal revenues by eliminating special business tax breaks which do not aid economic development including deferral of foreign income, tax straddles, oil and gas depletion allowances, certain industry-specific subsidies, and part of the business meal and entertainment deduction.

"Taken together, the Congressional Black Caucus tax proposals will increase federal revenues by more than $27 billion, provide tax relief for ordinary citizens, and encourage productive private investment," Chairman Fauntroy said.

The Face that Launched 1000 Slips.

Janet Cooke, girl reporter, was able to Bamboozle the entire editorial apparatus at the Washington Post that hotbed of H.I.R." hardhitting investigative reporting," because inpart, she is an extremely attractive female. That's right, Ben Bradlee, Miton Coleman, Bob Woodward and Company, all those keepers of the gate to journalistic heaven, the front page, had their collective he ads turned by a pretty face.

They would of course, be loathe to admit it. They would no doubt, dismiss the notion as pretty trite, a denigration of their professional abilities. But I submit that before this thought is dismissed out-of-hand we should examine our attitude toward the more attractive members of our society.

Most of us are unwilling to admit the degree to which these attitudes permeate our value system. More often than not equate beauty and virtue. Think about it. We tend to favor "pretty" childern over those that are not so pretty our heroes and heroines are almost uniformely beautiful. As a result, we also tend to let our guard down, trusting more easily the "beauties" among us.

Janet Cooke is a very talented and very ambitous writer-reporter. "Jimmy's World," her fabricated account of the horrific life of an 8 year old heroine addict is a supreme example H.I.R., Pulitzer Prize material if you will. She is also a skillful, if seriously disurbed, liar. But would this, could this, group experienced, professional (and male) journalists and editors be taken in quite so handily if the taken were not quite so stunningly beautiful? Having been occasionally on the receiving end of this kind of undeserved Largess, I think not.

Janet Cooke's comely features and skillful use of the written word were not the only reason that; "Jimmy's World" was front page material for one of these biggest daily news paper in the Country. The competion with-in the media for the "scoop of scoops" and the consequent recognition and prizes is fiercely intense. reporters and editors dream about a "Watergate" to call their very own. No doubt this hope, especially springs eternal at the source of the story of the century.

While the life of an 8 year old Junkie is not the toppling of the President, the story with all its grisly details, had a stunning impact. Even after a painstaking search by Police to find "Jimmy" proved fruitless, causing Police Official and D.C. Mayor Marion Barry to seceriously question his exsistence, hundreds of letters to the editor praised the The Post's coverageous coverage. And of course, Janet Cooke was subsequently awarded the Pulitzer Prize, the most prestigious Prize in Journalism.

"Jimmy's World" is a powerful evocation of a sickness that threatens too many of our people young and old. It is a story that should be told and re-told until the disease is eradicated. However, this account of drug addiction was not a "Breaking Story". The Washington Post was indanger of being scooped by its competition. Yet it rushed the story with-out first taking the time to check its veracity. Why?

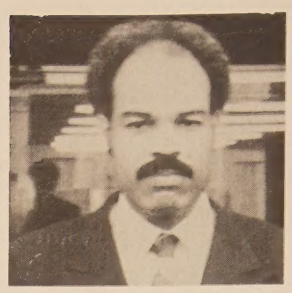
The same week that "Jimmy's World" appeared, The Washington Post Sunday Magazine section ran a coverage story detailing the Life and Time of a Black women who was, "the queen crime" in D.C. Thirty years ago. This was no "fast breaking" story either. Also during that week the Congressnonal Black Caucus held its annual Convention, attracting thousands of Black people from all over the country to D.C. So big a drawing card is the C.B.C. Convertion that a number of other Black organization held their convention here at the same time.

Was it sheer coincidence that The Post chose this particular week to run not one, but two major stories whose central themes placed Black people in a shall we say less than Laudatory Light? If it was simply bad timing than this coinidence was one based in a monumental lack of sensitivity. It also revealed an amazing ignorance of what's going on in the Black community that is seventy percent of cities total population.

One final note. If the editors and reporters at this "great metropolitan daily" had been more concerned with the welfare of an 8 year old boy than with a sensational story, they wouldn't be wiping egg off their faces now? If just one of them had said "Hey, we've got to get that kid out of there." Damn the First Amendment, Janet, where is he? "They would have known then what the world knows now.

Two days after she was awarded, Janet Cooke resigned from The Washington Post and returned the Pulitzer Prize

Legal Facts



James Buckley, a Washington attorney, recently returned to Tacoma and joined the law firm of Herrmann Levenson, Margullis & Finch, after having spent three (3) years as a senior deputy prosecuting attorney with Thurston County. He was assigned to the criminal law section.

Buckley will be writing a weekly article for The Tacoma Facts over the next several months. His articles will cover various areas of the law.

By James C. Buckley, Attorney at Law

"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searchers and seizures, shall not be violated,..."

Last week, we indicated that at your ominbus hearing your lawyer will make to dismiss the illegal possession of drugs charge pending against you. Remember, two weeks ago we set out the facts of a hypothetical case whereby you were arrested by the police after running a stop sign. The police officer instructed you to open your can truck lid and to open a suitcase located inside the trunk. There was approximately $100,000.00 worth of cocaine inside the suitcase. You were placed under arrest and booked into the Pierce County Jail for the illegal p-ossession of drugs, a felony, failure to stop at a stop sign and driving without a driver's license. The basis for your motion to dismiss is insufficient evidence to convict. Once your motion to suppress the drugs is granted, the prosecutor will not have enough evidence to convict you. In other words, your lawyer will first move to have the cocaine suppressed because the search involved is illegal.

The Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution prohibits unreasonable searches and seizures. The search of a suitcase located inside the trunk of a car has been held by the United States Supreme Court, as well as the Washington State Supreme Court, to be an unreasonable search unless the police officer has a search warrant. You have a constitutional right to refuse to permit a police officer to search a suitcase found inside the trunk of your car, unless the officer has a search warrant issued by a Judge.

In our hypothetical case, the police officer did not have a search warrant. Therefore, he could not legally order you to open your car trunk, nor could he legally order you to open the suitcase located inside the trunk. Since the cocaine was seized illegally by the police officer, the cocaine will be suppressed by the court upon the timely motion of your lawyer. In other words, the cocaine cannot be used as evidence in your trial. Therefore, there is no evidence that can be placed before a jury to prove tghat you illegally possessed drugs. Because the cocaine cannot be used as evidence against you, the drugs charge will have to be dismissed. The law provides that a police officer may not testify about drugs that are suppressed held to have been illegally obtained.

The results of this case would be different had the police officer advised you that you have a right to refuse to allow him to search the trunk of your car, but he is requesting your consent. Assuming that you did in fact give your consent to the search after being advised of this right.

Again, waiving your rights might have made the difference between walking out of the courtroom free and being sent to prison for ten years. Of course, your lawyer making the motion to suppress the drugs was also necessary to preserve your rights. Without that motion being properly briefed and presented to the court, you still could have been sent to prison.

Oh, the two insignificant traffic charges! You will have to pay a small insignificant fine for them. Well, you cannot have everything.

Next week we will go through the steps that a criminal trial follows.

"Beloved I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in helth even as thy soul prospereth." III John 2

Colon-Rectum Cancer

Colon and rectum cancer account for 100,000 new cases each year and about 52,000 deaths. It accounts for 10% of all cancers in men (behind lung and prostate) and 14% of all cancers in women (behind breast and uterine). It accounts for 8% of the cancer deaths in men and 14% in women.

Most concer experts agree that 2 out of 3 persons with cancer of the large intestine (Colon) could be saved by each persons attention to suspicious symptoms and the use of screening and diagnostic tools now available, What are some of these suspicious symptoms? Any rectal bleeding should be suspect, in fact rectal bleeding is cancer until proven otherwise. Persistent change in bowel habits of greater than 2 weeks duration is also suspicious. Patients may also complain of abdominal aches and pains. Where may be the presence of a lump or mass in the abdomen suggesting far advanced disease.

The single most important screening tool we have, is the annual check for hidden blood in the stool (often the blood loss is so small, that it cannot be seen by the naked eye. The hemocult card allows detection of even small amounts of blood. If should be done as part of a routine physical, particularly in persons over the age of 40. The Doctor obtains a stool specimen during a rectal exam. The rectal exam is also useful in detecting growths within reach of the examining finger. If hidden blood is found or a mass on rectal exam, further studies should follow. These include a direct inspection through a lighted tube called a proctoscope; X-rays studies such as the barium enema, and possibly biopsy.

The death rates for black men with colon and rectum cancer is 13 per 100,000 compared to 14 per 100,000 for white men; it is the same for both black and white women, namely 12 per 100,000. Colon and rectum cancer incidence rates have changed little in whites but have risen in blecks. Similar rates are now found in black and white females and the rate in black males is approaching that of white males. In cancer of the colon, 5-year survival rates for blacks in 35% as compared to 46% for whites (Overall more whites were diagnosed in the early stages of their disease). For rectum cancer the 5 year survival rate was 30% for balacks (In general survival rates were poorer for blacks than for whites, and better in women (both groups) than in men.

More recently much attention has been given to the role of nutrition in preventing colon cancer. Many agree that increasing dietary fiber and decreasing fats in the diet may be useful.

In the nest issue a discussion of Breast Cancer.

Journal

Easter is a fun time for the little ones all dressed in their finery and at egg hunts.

At the various churchs I found many beautiful young people with big smiles as they attended church with their parents.

At Peace Lutheran Church, after service, there was an egg hunt for the small childern then the older ones. A friendly youngster, Bomonti Moore, with his basket was so very handsome in his white straw hat, others were Lee Lambent, Steven Gatewood, Kemo

Jones, who found the most eggs and pretty 4 year old twins Maria and Chela Drehek whose birthday was April first.

At Miles Memorial Church there were Christara Mustin with her mother Mrs. Algerita Mustin, there was Shakira and brother Haile Dorsey at Mt. Calvery Baptist Church; Millicent Gardner of Greater Christ Temple who told me Easter was for Christ who "rose" from the dead three days after he died, but she did not know what day that was.

New Covenant Pentecostal gave all the children beautiful egg baskets after church, joyful young ones were Mary Sherles, Monet Henty, Ebony Jenkins.

Coming from Church of Christ were Linda Randolph with baby Kamesha, Shirley Randolph and baby Telita

Callender and vivacious Andreta Chambers, Waiting for their mother after mass at Holy Rosary Catholic Church were Jennifer, Christie and Stephanie Gallegos, I must not forget handsome little Jason Terry with his beautiful smile at Miles CME Church.

Katrina Jackson of Shiloh Baptist Church looking very pretty with her afro braids and blue dress with cousin Charlonda Jackson in a pink ruffle dress.

At the Fort Lewis Officers club Easter Buffet were the Frank Joseph family, children Dionne, Paul and Carrie and cousins from Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pipkins Jr. with baby daughter Amber.

Mrs. Mary Wilson looking very pretty in a flower dress was dining with her husband Jim, and Clarence and Ruby Martin.

There was Capt. Dennis Cunningham of the 9th Aviation BN. with wife Vanessa and four month old son Christerfer.

One of the best dressed men in the city, Harold Caffee, looked as if he had stepped off page one of a famous man's magazine. Harold was attired in white pants, black coat with light shirt and black tie.

Search the Scriptures

By Evangelist J. Allen Elkananda

Devotional reading Gen.1:29-30..Background Scriptures Ps. 34:8, Heb.11:16:32-36

Testimonies are a vital part of our religious devotion much the same as confession! For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation ,wrote the apostle Paul(Romans 10:10). Therefore we must both confess our beliefs and testify of our new - found joys.

In the Scriptures we find many testimonies of men and women rejoicing in what the Lord had done for them (their personal experiences). Should not we all have a testimony..? LET THE REDEEMED SAY So.

Who's Who

By Jean Watley

Ollie Taylor

"Blessings Boulevard" I am sure most of you have heard that show on Sunday mornings. You know, the one that plays the church music. Many have heard Ollie Taylor but few have seen her, at least that's what most people say when asked.

Even though Ollie is not a resident of Tacoma, she certainly is a personality here. I take this opportunity to announce that Ollie Taylor will have a religious column in the FACTS called "Blessings Boulevard."

Ollie has proven to be a dedicated Christain lady in the religious circles as well as the community.

She came to Seattle in December of 1968 from Chicago. She joined the Shiloh M.B. Church under the leadership of Rev. Ben Rhodes. She served as Church Clerk for three years and taught Sunday School for four years. Ollie returned to Chicago for about a year. During this period she noted that Chicago was bursting with gospel in all forms and saw the need for more gospel music in Washington State. When she returned to Washington, she opened up a record shop specializing in gospel, new and old; this was five years ago. She has recently opened another record shop in Moses Lake.

She has as always been involved in church activities, the list is far too long to lay before you here. However, her strong love and interest for religious music and song has enhanced her position today at radio station KYAC where she is the Religious Director.

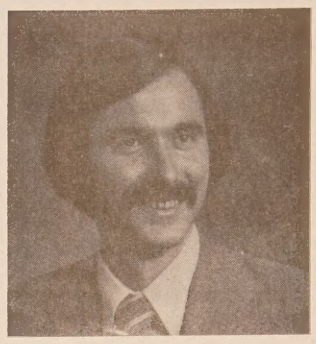
YOUR LEGISLATORS

Listening to you at home... representing you in Olympia.

A COMMUNITY LEADER AND HOMEMAKER, A STADIUM HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER WHO GREW UP IN TACOMA NEIGHBORHOODS AND A LOCAL MINORITY LEADER REPRESENT THE INNER CITY AND NORTHEAST TACOMA IN WASHINGTON'S CITIZEN LEGISLATURE. Legislators will return from Olympia soon to Tacoma homes and occupations to meet with constituents, report on "a disappointing" 1981 session and monitor the effects of this year's decisions on their community and the people they represent in the shaping of state policy. Senator Wojahn has lived most of her life among the families of Tacoma's blue collar workers, emerging as a powerful advocate of workers and consumers and as an influential voice in government for women and children left on their own by divorce, abandonment or death of a husband and father. Also a Tacoma native, Jim Salatino attended local schools and was graduated from the University of Puget Sound. Art Wang, former VISTA volunteer with the Tacoma Urban League decided to seek public office himself as part of his drive to involve minorities in the political process as a weapon against oppressive social legislation. In Olympia, Art became a persuasive voice for Tacoma's ethnic minorities. Working as a team in Olympia and at home, Lorraine, Art and Jim have grown so familiar with Tacoma, its people and its ways, they can usually look into their own hearts to know what the people of Tacoma want when legislative decisions are made. All 147 members of Washington's Legislature will be returning to their home districts this month. They will spend the interim -- like Lorraine, Art and Jim -- listening to neighbors, co-workers and as many constituents as they can reach, for the concerns that will make up their agenda for the 1982 session.

Senator R. Lorraine Wojahn



Representative James E. Salatino

Representative Art Wang

(Clockwise from far left), Tacoma Councilman Tim Strege and Congressman Norm Dicks confer with Senator Wojahn and Representative George Walk of Puyallup . . . Senator Wojahn as chairman of the Financial Institutions Committee discusses the impact of higher consumer interest rates on inflation with Federal Reserve Bank official William Burke . . . Senator Wojahn greets what may be last of Tacoma school children visiting Capitol because of cutbacks in transportation funds . . . Representative Salatino makes a point during floor debate . . . and confers with House leadership during a caucus session which includes (at left) Democratic Caucus Chairman Dan Grimm of Puyallup.

Don't forget the May 16, Second Annual "Heart Run" sponsored by St. Joseph Hospital. Better hurry up and get in your best shape because the field is destined to be fierce. Bill Rodgers will only be running as and honorary guest so his presence shouldn't arouse you that much. Information concerning entries for the race is available by calling 206-522-7787.

Make Other People Like You

By Dr. Charles W. Faulkner

Are you searching for friends? Would you like to make other people become interested in you? Would you like to win friends and influence people? If your answer to these quection is yes, follow this advice:

1. Want To Be Friendly. When you sincerely want to be friendly, you have begun to win the battle of getting friends.
2. Act Like A Friend. When you are friendly, other people will respond similarly because they will feel that you like them.
3. Ask Questions. And, display a sincere intererest in the answers. Most people become very happy when others ask them questions about themselves. This is the easiest way to "break the ice."
4. Be A Good Listener. Show conern, understanding and empathy. Most people search endlessly for someone who will listen to their problems; someone who will let them undurden themselves of their difficulties. So, listen!
5. Put Your Own Problems Away For A While. Your problems are more important to you than the problems of another person. But your problems are not as important to others as they are to you. Few people ever really have an opportunity to express, in a very personal way, the things that trouble them. When you put your problems away and show sincere interest in the problems of others, you will be instantly liked. So, quietly listen and begin to collect friends.
6. Smile. Your smile indicates that you like the person at whom you are smiling. When you smile at them, they will return your smile because your smile says: "I like you." Everybody likes to be liked. Everybody likes the person who likes them. So, smiles and win friends.
7. Look At The Other Person. Let your eyes communicate your friendliness. When your eyes display interest in the other person, they feel friendly around you. They feel that you are sencerely interested in them and become even more motivated to talk. Let them talk about themselves and you will notice how quickly they begin to like you.
8. Them Talk--by asking them questions about something in which they are interested. Your first objective should be to find out
